5.3 Write a program to compute the number of collisions required in a long random sequence of insertions using linear probing, quadratic probing, and double hashing